

Alameda County Interested in Obtaining a Learning Management System

Posted At : December 29, 2009 10:39 AM | Posted By : Scott Unzicker

Related Categories: State & Local, Contract Opportunities, Procurement

Alameda County released a Request for Interest for a Learning Management System (LMS) on December 22, 2009. The intent of the RFI is to search for qualified vendors who are interested in providing a LMS as required by the Alameda County Conference Center. The County intends to release a Request for Proposals and award a three year contract, with option to renew, to the bidder selected as the most responsible bidder whose response conforms to the RFP and meets the County's requirements.

The County seeks to enter into a contract with a qualified vendor to provide, install and configure a LMS. The system shall be used by County personnel to register via the County intranet for classroom and online training sessions. The LMS will provide a registration approval process, automate reporting on critical information such as compliance and costs, and will track individual employee training progress including required curriculums dependent on job code. The installation of the LMS system will include the integration/migration of current data and must interface with the County's current PeopleSoft human resources management system.

The RFI will remain open until the RFP is released. At this time, the RFP is anticipated to be released on January 29, 2010.